Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 17 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny and increasingly hot for many.

Today:
Some low cloud with patchy light rain and drizzle affecting northern and western Scotland. Elsewhere, plenty of sunshine and turning widely very warm or hot by afternoon.

Tonight:
A warm night with clear skies for most. A few patches of fog and low cloud forming, whilst thicker cloud brings light rain or drizzle to northern and western Scotland.

Sunday:
Hot sunshine across much of England and Wales. A sharp shower is possible later. Cloudier and somewhat cooler in the north, some light rain for northern Scotland.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Mostly places fine and dry. Some drizzle in the far north and isolated showers in the south. Warm for most, locally hot in parts of the south and southwest Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.